THE GALVEZ BANQUET.

The dinner to Dr. Galvez at the Café de Paris on Friday was one of the most exceptional banquets ever given in this city, since it had nothing of a political color, and was purely a tribute of respect by estancieros and property-holders in Santa Fé to Dr Galvez, the most go-ahead minister Santa Fé has ever had. The banquet hall of the Café de Paris was decorated with flags, flowers and branches, and a brass band was posted in it. The committee received the guests at the lobby; and at 7 o'clock a special committee, consisting of Dr. Llambi Campbell and Mr. Editor Mulhall, was despatched in a carriage to bring the guest of the evening, Dr. Galvez, from his house in Calle Florida. It was close on 8 o'clock when the dinner began, Dr. Galvez occupying the centre, with Mr. E. Casey and Mr. Sastre, President of the National Bank, on each side and Dr. Ruiz de los Llanos, President of the Chamber of Deputies, Dr. Llambi Campbell, President of the Mortgage Bank, and Dr. Cullen in front. The guests numbered some 35 or 40 composed chiefly of merchants, estancieros, Railway contractors etc. We noticed the following: Mess Runciman, C. Alvear, Bombal, Ledesma, Hanquiet, Dr. Christiani, W. Hume, Centeno, Segui, Arteaga, Castillo, etc, etc. It was at first understood, that, adopting the new high life rules at banquets, there were to be no speeches, and the dinner passed off most pleasantly and convivially up to the coffee epoch, when M. Hanquiet, the well know French money broker, and the representative of the Belgian Estancia Co. at Venado Tuerto, broke the rule and in flowery French style proposed the health of the guest of the evening, Dr. Galvez, Minister of Santa Fé. (Cheers). Mr. Ledesma next followed in the same complimentary strain, and asked his friend Dr. Centeno to more fully and more eloquently convey to the table the sincere feelings of esteem of the men of work, of labour and of capital in Santa Fé towards Dr. Galvez, who had proved himself their friend and the friend of progress (applause). Dr Centeno was at once on his legs, and felt complimented on being asked by a merchant to discharge a duty so agreeable. He spoke of the giant march of Santa Fé, and of how much of that progress was due to the distinguished gentleman the guest of the evening, a young man, of great patriotism and great ability and to whose untiring exertions the property-holders of Santa Fé owed so very much (cheers.)

Dr. Galvez rose and in graceful terms replied to the great compliments which had been showered on him, and which by hard work and strict honor he hoped always to prove himself deserving of. The progress of Santa Fe, the better security for life and property, and the increased happiness of the people of that province were and always would be his sworn programme, but he wanted the help of all present (cheers). Santa Fé has now a population of 230,000, and he hoped in less than ten years it would have 500,000. (Great applause).

Dr Llambi Campbell, President of the Mortgage Bank, rose and, in eloquent terms, toasted prosperity to Santa Fé and its popular Minister of Government, the guest of the evening, Dr. Galvez, whom he had known from boyhood and whose career in Santa Fe had been marked with the splendid progress of that province. He considered that a province boasting of such industry and wealth should cultivate those institutions which form the most powerful aids to public and private wealth; and he threw out the hint that Santa Fe ought to have her Banco Hipotecario (great cheers) which would help the farmer, estanciero and colonist. He deplored that in a province so rich and so go-ahead he only owned two melancholy solares in the city of Rosario, and this notwithstanding the very deep interest he took in a province whose first census was taken by his respected father Sr. Llambi Campbell. He considered that Santa Fe wanted more railways, and he fell confident that with men of such talent and ability as Dr Galvez in the Government, this want would be soon supplied. (Great cheers).

Dr. Segui next proposed the guest of the night as the future Governor of Santa Fè. (Tremendous applause, clapping of hands, and beating the table.) Dr. Galvez was of all others the best man for that high post. He judged him by his public acts, his antecedents and his friends; on one side he saw Sr. Sastre, the talented and popular manager of the greatest financial institution in the country, the Nat. Bank, (cheers) on the other side he saw one of the greatest pioneers of industrial progress in this Republic, Mr. Edward Casey, who had called into life desert lands that are now smiling centres of human industry, (great applause.) Before him sat Dr. Ruiz de los Llanos, the dignified and able representative of the Argentine Legislation; alongside is Dr. Llambi Campbell, who so ably manages our Mortgage Bank, and next to him sat Dr. Cullen, whose friendship for Santa Fé, and whose great talents as a lawyer were known to all. Supported by such men and the other friends around, Dr. Galvez could not miss his mark, and he drank to him as the future Governor of Santa Fé. (Great applause.)

Mr. E. T. Mulhall drank to the unhappy people who have no lands in Santa Fé, and that they at once purchase whatever they can get. (Great cheers)

Dr. Cullen rose, not to drink to Dr. Galvez, whom he had known from boyhood, but he drank health and prosperity to the new Santa Fè club which he proposed, the men around this table should to-night form. He was in favor of a mortgage bank for Santa Fé and more railways for that province, but he considered the first and best step would be to start a club in this city of Santa Fé land owners, and he proposed that Mr. Casey should be the first president of that club. (Great applause.)

Dr. Ruiz de los Llanos, yielding to the sympathy expressed by his neighbour Mr. Mulhall, for those who own no lands in Santa Fé, and in reply to the remarks of Mr Ledesma, drank with increased pleasure to the health of Dr. Galvez, whose province showed the most wondrous growth; only a few weeks ago he had visited Santa Fé, after an absence of 18 years, and he was certainly dumboundered at the evidence of progress which he saw everywhere. The magnificent railway station, the galpones, the talleres, the bridge over the arroyo Colastine in whose sparkling waters he bathed, all testified to the splendid go-aheadism of Santa Fé, under the Government of which Dr. Galvez formed so conspicuous a part. He drank to Santa Fé and its progressive Minister Dr. Galvez. (Great cheers)

Mr Castillo proposed in eloquent terms the Santa Fé colonist. He spoke to his own experiences, how he had known the country from Rosario to Villa Casilda with nothing but a few mud huts, to-day studded with fine brick houses and farms; on an occasion like the present the colonist who is the bone and sinew of Santa Fé, progress, should not be forgotten. He drank to the colonist (tremendous applause).

The party now rose, and most of the friends accompanied Dr Galvez on foot to his house, where three cheers were given for the future Governor of Santa Fé.

FOREIGNERS IN THE PLATE

"This country owes its intermittent despotism to the passive and inert body of its foreign population who, estranged from politics, withdraw from public life: living outside the active sphere of citizens and alienated from their rights; counterbalancing the native elements in number, wealth and influence, they form, beyond the pale of civic duties, a nucleus that leaves in minority the educated portion of the native community. Thus, any Government, good or bad, can hold its own and perpetuate abuse in the ruling of the country whilst supported on the broad basis of one half of the wealthy population, that is foreign and apathetic, and of half the other inhabitants who uncultured, pastoral and passive have no other horizon than that of becoming soldiers, policemen, or voters at the orders of rural commanders, justices of the peace, lieutenant-alcaldes, etc., and even of Custom House and Railway clerks, and of brothers and brothers-in-law of the President."

Had any foreign editor of Buenos Aires penned the above lines we should have qualified his audacity as the acme of bad taste, and serried columns of abuse would have been heaped on his editorial head in every Argentine paper; but, published in the leading article of a journal, whose editor is one of the most prominent, experienced and talented of Argentines, we cannot refrain from calling notice to such a melancholy confession of political weakness, enhanced by the eloquent, though tacit invitation to the foreign public to walk into the breezy parlor of local politics.

First and foremost, Argentines are not to blame for the intermittent despotism that afflicts this fair portion of the globe. The foreign element is the culprit because it holds aloof, refusing to vote or concur in setting up or upsetting a Government. This rather lame logic is somewhat strengthened by the assertion, not contained above, that foreigners help to consolidate a Government, whether good or bad, and our colleague snarls at the disagreeable conclusion that if foreigners have no right to attack a government they appear to enjoy the unlimited privilege of applauding and supporting it. This lets the cat out of the bag and shows where the shoe pinches. If, we may ask, foreigners incur so much uncalled-for abuse when applauding the Government and helping in their narrow sphere to maintain order and advance the interests of the country, what, then, would await them if they were to enter the lists of the opposition and join the crusade of abuse and seditious language against all established authorities? There could be no better argument in favour of total abstention from the political stage, where the slightest step on the part of a foreigner is viewed as an unpardonable intrusion. Politics, as they are, contain enough inflammable matter without foreigners stepping in to fan the blaze of strife. There is only one way for a foreigner to enter the political arena, and that is by losing his nationality and becoming naturalized.

When the immortal Canning declared from the Ministerial bench of the House of Commons that he called a new World into existence to redress the balance of the old one, he little dreamt that the most reputed statesman of that very continent, whose cause he so warmly espoused, would apostrophize foreigners in general, and Britishers in particular, as Corinthian haberdashers basking in the sunshine of wealth and conspiring to perpetuate intermittent despotism and abuse in Government. Where are the dulled recollections of all the British blood shed and all the British gold spent to emancipate this country from the European yoke? History gives our colleague the lie direct, and the bones of old Admiral Brown must rattle in his coffin at the idea that his and his companions' brave efforts merely conspired to perpetuate despotism after sweeping Spaniards and Brazilians from the waters of the Republic.

The priests of Cuzco knew the English better; they prophesied that this continent would be emancipated with the help of England. Although the Latin republics may have forgotten it, history records the magnanimity of Great Britain, the many thousands of Englishmen who fell fighting for the South American cause—that ideal that is now crowned by intermittent despotism—, the generosity of the London bankers and the many battle-fields where so much Saxon blood was shed to eradicate the colonial weeds that smothered the plant of liberty. If those weeds have grown again from the Caribbean sea to the tropic of Capricorn, let us attribute the cause to the absence of those elements that thrived and died with Bolivar and San Martin. Chile and Argentina, however, have escaped the Nemesis that is at the doors of all the other republics, and if we inquire the most potent cause, shall we be denied, if we assert it is the very same that helped to emancipate the continent—British enterprise and British gold? If Admiral Brown, General Miller, the Anglo-Irish legion, McGregor, O'Higgins, McKenna, and a host of others helped to free South America from the Spanish yoke and staked their lives and their fortunes in the successful attempt to give freedom to a new world, others, sprung from the same generous blood though in humbler walks of life, have crowned their efforts by consolidating their victories in the arts of peace. The efforts of the former were in vain where the latter failed to follow. Let General Sarmiento ascend the Aconcagua and from that top vertebra of the great backbone of the continent scan the immense plains of the Plate and the rugged lands of Chile; the enterprise, brains and capital of the foreigner will meet his glance from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific. All those railways, running from Bahia Blanca and the mouth of the Plate to Tucuman and the Andes, from the South to the North of Chile, are made of British materials, built with British money and laid down by British engineers. All those telegraphs that have checked so many revolutions, all those colonies and all those sheep-farms which have increased the wealth of the country one hundred-fold are the main results of the spirit of foreign enterprise. It is all this that has saved Argentina and Chile from the fate of the sister-republics. But for this gigantic enterprise and millions of capital, the Argentine Republic would be today what it was in the time of the Paraguayan War, when General Mitre had to face a revolution in every province—when every "caudillo," in the absence of means of communication, could raise his "poncho" and rebel against the Government.

Nothing could be more unfair than to forget all this to make the pusillanimous change that foreigners foster perpetual abuse and despotism in Government. The assertion has been made in haste, the writer speculating on the fact that where vested interests are great people are less liable to plunge into adventure and incur loss, but an Argentine statesman should never so far forget himself as to launch such an accusation against a community which is the foundation of the country's vitality, and which, although aloof from the burning politics that so often end in brothers seizing each other by the throat, is after all the great ballast that saves the Ship of State in days of trial. Much as the pressure of naturalized citizens is to be desired in politics, it would be highly impolitic to advocate and carry it into effect at a moment when party feeling is so strained, and when the few foreigners who support the Government and help the interests of the country are abused for directly abetting, whilst the whole body of foreigners who are indifferent are charged with helping to perpetuate intermittent despotism. Such a charge is ludicrous and has no basis to stand on, and the writer himself very probably does not believe it, since it clashes with all his antecedents whether in or out of Government.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

OPENING OF THE GERMAN REICHSTAG.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Berlin, Nov. 19.

Herr von Boetticher, Secretary of State for the Interior, opened the new session of the Reichstag this afternoon with a speech, the last sentence of which is of great importance in connection with the Eastern crisis:

"The German Empire enjoys peaceful and friendly relations with all foreign Governments. His Majesty the Emperor cherishes the confident hope that the struggles of the Balkan States amongst one another will not disturb the peace of the European Powers, and that the Powers who seven years ago sealed the peace of Europe, which is of equal importance to each of them, by their treaties, will also succeed in securing for those treaties the respect of the races in the Balkan territory which obtained independence through them. His Majesty the Emperor is inspired by full confidence that God's blessing, which has hitherto been richly showered on our policy for the maintenance of the peace of Europe, will for the future also not be absent.

These words were received with reiterated cries of "Bravo." They confirm what from the beginning of the crisis I have pointed out to you as the view of the German Government. That the Kaiser should speak with confident hope at a moment when the air is filled with Bulgarian and Servian bullets will, undoubtedly, give satisfaction throughout Europe.

Reference was also made in the speech to negotiations that have been carried on concerning German colonisation with England, Spain, France, Portugal, and the Sultan of Zanzibar. Those with England are said to be essentially completed, and 'negotiations with Spain lead us to expect that in consequence of the mediation of his Holiness the Pope a settlement of differences of opinion as to the priority of occupation of the Caroline Islands will shortly be agreed upon, corresponding to friendly relations of the two countries.' This sentence was also applauded.

The early part of the speech was occupied with internal matters—namely, the increase of the Army and Navy Budget, the introduction of bills for reform of the sugar tax, for the extension of the Accidents Insurance Law to farm and forest labourers, and for provision (in case of accidents) for officials and others connected with the Army and Navy. Then followed a passage concerning the proposed Baltic and North Sea Canal: "In the interest of the effective defence of the German coasts by our navy it is proposed to construct a navigable canal from the mouth of the Elbe to Kiel Bay, an undertaking which will also be of service to important economical interests."

SERVO-BULGARIAN WAR.

SUBMISSION OF PRINCE ALEXANDER TO THE SULTAN.

DEFEAT OF THE SERVIANS BEFORE SLIVNITZA.

ROUMANIAN PROTEST.

Vienna, Nov. 19.

"Prince Alexander has just telegraphed to the Grand Vizier offering the Sultan unconditional submission on behalf of himself and his people. The Prince says he has withdrawn his troops from Eastern Roumelia since the 14th inst., and begs the Sultan to assist him in his misfortune."

The Sultan was deeply moved on receiving the message, which was discussed at a Cabinet Council to-day.

The capture of Bresnik by the Servians will probably console them for their reverse at Slivnitza. Bresnik lies about twenty kilometres south of Slivnitza, and the Shumadia Division, which is now advancing along that line will thus probably be able to take the Bulgarian position either in the flank or rear. The Bulgarians fell back on Radomir, where more fighting took place yesterday, though with what result is not known. The fall of Radomir would leave open the road to Sofia for the Morava corps, but that body would hardly press forward independently of the two other divisions operating against the capital. There are private telegrams from Belgrade this evening stating that Radomir has already been occupied by the Servians, and that the divisions of the Shumadia and Morava, having effected a junction, are marching on Sofia, where the Servian vanguard would arrive to-day. The same telegrams also report the surrender of Widdin and the capture of the garrison. Whether this latter news be true or not, there can be no doubt that the Bulgarian corps, under command of Colonel Philippoff, entrusted with the defence of North Bulgaria, including Widdin, has been completed routed and dispersed.

General Leschjanin, who started from Zaichar, crossed the Timok and took Adlie by storm on the 15th. On this occassion the Servians gallantly mounted to the assault of eighteen Bulgarian redoubts. General Leschjanin was attacked halfway betwen Adlie and Widdin by Philippoff's corps, supported by a large band of sharpshooters. They were disastrously beaten, and what remained of them fled to Widdin. These fugitives will certainly have produced a panic at Widdin, and the appearance of Leschjanin's troops a few hours later within gun range of the city may possibly have brought about its capitulation. It is, however, difficult to conceive that some sort of defence should not have been attempted. The position of Widdin is excellent. It is situated on an elevated plateau and environed by a morass. It can only be besieged from the land side, unless the assailant has a flotilla. A double wall encircles the town on the land side; the outer one is surrounded by a moat, which can be flooded. Widdin could be bombarded from the neighbouring heights with heavy siege guns, of which there are some 300 in the arsenal on Krajugevatz. General Leschjanin has none with him, and would have to wait for them before beginning offensive operations against the fortress itself. The repulse of the Servians at Slivnitza does not appear to have made much impression at Belgrade, where it was attributed to the delay in the advance of the Morava Corps. The Servians retreated as far as Dragoman.

Relgrade, Nov. 19.

A heavy batch of Bulgarian prisoners arrived here from Nisch to-day.

After their Tuesday's repulse, the Servians, early yesterday morning, again attacked all the Bulgarian positions at Slivnitza. The enemy, under Prince Alexander's personal command, fought very gallantly, repelling the assault and more than once driving small bodies of the Servians back. The fighting continued for several hours all along the Bulgarian front, and was only put a stop to by a dense fog.

The Bulgarians still hold the line of positions Slivnitza-Bratusko-Sello (Golubovci).

The Servian mishap was caused by the failure of the Shumadia and Morava divisions to support the main force at the right moment.

Yesterday evening the fall of Widding was announced here.

During the battle at Slivnitza the Bulgarians made a spirited dash at the Servian left wing and took 500 men prisoners.

Tzaribrod, Nov. 18.

In yesterday's battle before Slivnitza the Servians could not bring up their full strength into action, and were defeated, falling back upon the Dragoman Pass. The fighting was of a desperate character. The Danube, Drina, and Shumadia Divisions are expected to be completed to-day with the second-class reserves, thus enabling forty-eight battlions to come into action, supported by artillery and cavalry.

Semlin, Nov. 19.

The Servian Legation in London has received the following official telegram from Belgrade, dated 1.10 p.m., to-day (19th inst.):

"The reports that our troops have attacked Slivnitza, and that they have been repulsed are false. On the 17th the Bulgarians attacked our left wing, and, favoured by a thick fog, succeeded in approaching our positions, but after very sharp fighting were repulsed. Our right wing attacked the same day the Bulgarian entrenchments at Slavinye, and drove the Bulgarians from their advanced positions. Our losses, 500 killed and wounded. Yesterday morning we undertook a reconnaissance in the direction of Slavinye. After two hours' engagement, our troops returned to their position. Colonel Topalovich yesterday, between Bresnik and Pernik, fought with two companies against two Bulgarian battalions, who menaced his flank. The Bulgarians left 100 dead and wounded. We took sixty prisoners.

Belgrade, Nov. 19 (Evening.)

The reply of the Porte to the Note of the Servian Government commences by expressing the regret of the Ottoman Government at the outbreak of war. The Porte declares that it takes note of the declaration of the Servian Government that the sovereign rights of the Sultan in Bulgaria will be respected, and concludes by recommending Servia to exercise moderation.

Belgrade, Nov. 18 (Evening.)

Queen Natalie received a telegram at six o'clock this evening from Zaitchar, announcing the fall of Widdin.

Part of the Morava division, under Colonel Topalovich, has taken Radomir, after severe fighting.

Four hundred prisoners have just arrived here by railway from the front.

The Prefect of Belgrade announces that all Servian inhabitants of Trn who have taken refuge in Servia are now at liberty to return.

Tzaribrod, Nov. 18.

A great battle has been fought in Slivnitza. The Servian troops engaged comprised the divisions of General Jovanovich and Colonels Benitzky and Meskovich. The Bulgarians were found to be in greater force and in a stronger position than the Servians had expected. Fighting has been going on continuously for eighteen hours. Colonel Topalovich's division is expected here from Radomir.

Part of Colonel Meskovich's division has been detached for service on the Timok River. Altogether about 30,000 Servians have been engaged in the operations.

The Servians are slowly pressing Prince Alexander's army towards Sofia, but the Bulgarians dispute every inch of ground.

Each Servian division is composed of three regiments of nine battalions each, and three reserve battalions, numbering in all 12,000 men.

Sofia, Nov. 18

Another important engagement took place at Slivnitza to-day.

In the battle near that place yesterday 25,000 Servians, with seven batteries of artillery, were engaged, while the Bulgarians disposed of only 15,000 men, not including artillery. The wounded are being conveyed here from the front.

Troops are arriving here from Eastern Roumelia.

LONDON LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

GENERAL NEWS.

November 23rd.

As you will have seen, probably by telegrams, the Servians on entering Bulgaria carried all before them, and we were in expectation of hearing soon that Sofia was in their hands. The Servians, however, seem to have received a severe check at Slivnitza. I send you the telegrams separately, but we are in the old difficulty, that the accounts vary according as they come to us through Belgrade and Vienna, or from Sofia or St. Petersburg.

In regard to the Burmese war, I must add that there is great dissatisfaction amongst the friends of the young officers who have been quartered in Burmah. They naturally expected that their regiments would have been ordered to the front, whilst it appears that some of these battalions have been kept in reserve and the place of honor has been given to "Wolseley's pets." This is not the first time that similar complaints have been made, and it makes Lord Wolseley exceedingly unpopular. He is a fine officer, and his voice is invaluable at the War Office, but he is hated at the Horse Guards and looked down upon as a "cad." There is a certain petitesse in the man, no doubt.

Mr. Stephen Williamson writes to the World congratulating the writer of "In the City," in that paper, on the excellence of his articles on the silver question. Mr. Williamson must have silver on the brain, or he would scarcely condescend to flatter the writer of articles which, as seriously-intended moneyed articles, are the silliest in the press. Mr. Williamson, in his own letter, refers to South America as an illustration of the inconveniences of the single and gold standard. He says—

"When a stringency occurs in the River Plate provinces, they are so far removed from the gold centres that suspension is inevitable, while they have supplies of silver near them, which are not serviceable for money to be used in the settlement of international indebtedness. In like manner Chile, now on an enforced paper currency, which is daily receding more and more from a metallic basis, has no encouragement to exchange her copper currency for silver money. During the existing instability of silver, any effort or sacrifice need not be expected.

"In the meantime, the Custom House resources of those and other States are falling off greatly if measured in gold, and higher duties on British goods are being imposed. These excessive duties tend in two directions most hurtful to our interests. They curtail consumption. They will also stimulate the planting of industries which, under cover of high tariffs, will compete with the products of European industry. To a small extent this has begun. I hear of efforts to extend it.

"If, with contempt for the position and circumstances of our best customers, we adhere to our insular prejudices, our gold—in which we trust so much—may became dross to us. We can only prosper by removing all possible barriers to the free interchange of commodities and the final settlement of international balances in the money of the world, that is, in gold or silver, in a fixed ratio of value.

Mr. Williamson's bi-metallic views are very temptingly put to those inclined to be influenced by particular crazes; but the "fixed ratio" he assumes is the whole point. I find in Mr. Mulhall's "History of Prices," just published, this important paragraph—"Thus the quantity of silver is now only nineteen times that of gold whereas in 1850 it was thirty-two times, and yet, strange to say, silver has fallen."

Can Mr. Williamson suppose that the mere monetisation of silver would adjust the ratios of value of the precious metals as commodities? If the adjustment could not be approximately attained, the forced currency of silver would only introduce a new element of demoralisation into the financial and monetary affairs of South American States. The gold would be exported to wealthier countries, and the silver would be retained to pay duties or to pay for produce. Mr. Williamson thinks it a grievance that you have no encouragement to change your paper for silver money. What is ts prevent you? You can get it cheap. But if you have to pay for it at a standard price, the equivalent of gold, you would scarcely be inclined to buy it. Your depreciated paper currency has nothing to do with silver. It has only one cause—over-indebtedness—the result of unproductive expenditure.

Mr. John A. Blake, late M.P. for county Waterford, has returned to Ireland, having finished his tour round the world. He anticipates that the Argentine Republic, having regard to its vast plains suitable for sheep and cattle farming, will soon send meat to the United Kingdom in such quantities as still further to reduce the value of land, and says Irish farmers should consider before becoming p[illegible] proprietors.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Yesterday was the most disagreeable day of the season so far. The stickiness of the heat was something phenomenal, and the thundering downpour of rain at down did not clear the air a bit or render life more tolerable. Strange to say the barometer rose considerably during the night, although the weather was so disturbed.

Weather permitting, the first stone of Messrs Moreno & Co's. range of buildings near Palermo, to be called Workmen's Dwellings, will be laid this afternoon by the Lord Mayor. The Archbishop will first bless the stone.

The evening papers mention an Italian named Bardinelli who ran 25 squares (2½ leagues) in Calles Temple and Larrea for a bet of 20 nats. He had four competitors and beat them all easily. He had hardly a hair turned when hecalled for a gin cocktail at the end of the race.

The Annual Examinations and distribution of prizes will come off at St. Andrew's Scotch School on Wednesday next. The programme is most attractive, and includes no fewer than 41 pieces of recitation, music and songs. The American Minister will distribute the prizes.

An International Exhibition of Potatoes will be held in France next year. What absurdity next.

The Saint Lucy Fetes wind up to-day. We hear that the flags, flowers and fireworks will be unusually brilliant.

The Committee of the Irish Club took possession of the new clubhouse 233 Calle Reconquista last week, and the place is now open to the members. The furniture, including a piano, is all in its place. The piano is an inovation we most decidely applaud. How the ineffable dreariness and Dundrearyness of half the clubs in town would be pleasantly modified by imitating the Irish Club and having songs and music as a refined change from cards, cocktails and 'carambola.' Splendid billiard tables are on the way out from England for the Irish Club. A wealthy member has promised the nucleus of a library; and, indeed, everything has been started most felicitously.

The War Minister put "No hay lugar y devuelvese" yesterday at the foot of General Sarmiento's petition for 16,000 hectares of land for the Rio Negro campaign. The old gentleman (the cleverest man in the country by the way) might as well have laid claim to land for the Soudan or Tonkin campaign.

The 'sublevacion' of Indians on the Tucuman sugar plantations turns ont to be a mere flash in the pan and monstrously exaggerated. There was no rising or riot. Twenty of the poor creatures ran away. That's all.

A whiskyfied Italian tumbled into the river from the Mole stairs on Friday night, while trying to steady himself with the river air. The Capitania men fished him out.

The Pacific Railway engineers are now making a third survey of the line from Mercedes to Buenos Aires. Mr. Lequelet and his staff are now at work on the section from Mercedes to Pilar, on Mr Nicholas Lowe's camp. This is good news for our friends in Pilar.

The tram cars will soon cease running in Calle Alsina, between Defensa and Balcarce, and in Calle Moreno, between the same streets; also the Boca line in Calle Victoria. The Drainage Works will stop the way.

The Chilian Minister, Sr Montt, went to La Plata on Friday to see the port works there. The Governor, ex-Governor and all the leading officials in the place turned out to do him honour, and the Provincial state coach also.

The Zubiaurre "finca" in Calle Defensa is likely to be rented by the Government, at 300 Nats per month, for the Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

The Northern Railway Company lost two trucks on Friday, owing to an engine-driver having lunched too copiously. He ran his engine into a goods train and demolished the vehicles referred to. Nobody concerned sustained any personal injury.

Our esteemed French colleague L'Independant had a high-toned article yesterday on the political condition of this country as disclosed by the elections, attributing most of the too numerous "tornillos flojos" to the system of having fourteen Governments for 3½ millions of people. We thoroughly agree with our colleague.

OBITUARY.

Ernest William White, whose untimely death was briefly recorded in our last number, was born at Eythorne, near Dover, on the 20th June, 1858, and when six years of age accompanied his parents to South America. Very delicate from birth, it was with great difficulty that he was reared. Books were forbidden him, and thus, untrammelled, he roamed abroad and communed with nature, early displaying a fondness for everything that lived. But it was when Henry Durnford came to Buenos Ayres that White's passion for natural history burst forth. They were bosom companions, and it was only by his father's command that White was debarred from accompanying Durnford in his last illfated expedition.

At his own request White was now sent to London to make the acquaintance of naturalists. He there became a Fellow of the Zoological Society of London, and entered into arrangements with Mr Edward Gerrard, jun., to perfect himself in the preparation of specimens. During his residence in London, White, in his passion for learning, took no heed of weather, and thus developed tuberculosis, the seeds of which were in him from his birth. He was consequently called home, and on the voyage burst a blood-vessel on the lungs and lost a great quantity of blood. He scarcely reached home alive, and was then instantly despatched to Mendoza, where he was enabled to gratify his passion for natural history in a new and little-explored region and, by roughing it, to regain health and strength.

For five years in this district White roamed about, sleeping amongst the snows, travelling on mule-back, battered and tossed by wind and rain, dust and heat, until at last he returned home robust, and sought for a wife ready to accompany and aid him in future toil. He found her and married; and then the next thing was to consider, as he had now contracted obligations, how to choose a profession that should first pay the expenses of his future explorations, and secondly [illegible] the minimum of time in preparation.

His first idea was medicine, which he studied in Buenos Ayres previous [illegible] considered among that all the dentists in Buenos Ayres are rich men, and that [illegible] are about the worst

Our specially esteemed colleague the Censor declares that a revolutionary bobbery is on the cards in Santa Fe, and may burst out at any moment.

"Not a cent" is the answer of the Government to the petition of Mr Neves for 20,000 nats. remuneration for removing some rocks that interfered with the cart traffic near the old Gas House. It was understood when permission was granted to do the work that it was to be a gratis job.

In parts of Calle Caseros the 'basura' carts call once a month, and all the scavenging has to be done by the eminent firm of Sun, Wind, Rain & Co., a South American house of immemorial standing and immense business.

A sheep-farming subscriber perpetrated the following in our office yesterday: "Why is a lamb the most profligate of all animals? Because it gambols on the turf, mixes with blacklegs, is sure to get fleeced, and when its mother dies is not worth a dam!"

The Washington vets. have taken the wind out of Pasteur's sails. They say that ammonia water is a certain and the only cure for hydrophobia.

The death of General Fragra, an Independence warrior, is announced from Montevideo. He was 80 years of age, and was conversing cheerfully with his children a few minutes before the Grim Reaper cut him down.

The great political Conference yesterday ended in nothing, or rather never began. Some red-tape hitch at the last moment. They say it will come off next week.

We hear from Rosario that it was our dear old favourite the Proveedor that knocked down the San Nicolas mole. Neither winds nor waves have ever affected works done by Mr. R. M. Ross.

"My hair is eighteen years older than my whiskers," said a lawyer, "and I cannot understand why my whiskers should turn grey first." "Because you have worked so much more with your jaws than your brains."

The woman who smiles at forty is more attractive than the one who frowns at twenty.

The Consejo D. met on Friday night and gave the Lord Mayor leave to throw away more money on Calle Larga and Avenida Alvear. There was a sharp and salty tussle between the Lord Mayor and Alderman Soler, the latter opposing—tooth, nail and knee—the vote of four million nats. for the service of the Boulevard Loan. Nevertheless the huge amount was voted, and salaries and wages were increased right, left and centre. Where all the money thus recklessly voted away is to come from is the puzzle.

The Prensa warns the public against a dearly nice old gentleman who belongs to a "familia distinguida" and has taken to swindling as an amusement since he lost his fortune on the Bolsa. His favourite dodge is pretending that he has been taken suddenly ill; he enters a shop where he sees only one person, calls in a faint voice for a glass of water, and the person rushes off to get it; the old cove plunges his hand into the till or pounces on anything portable within his reach. His appearance is so "distingue" that nobody suspects him for a moment.

Mr Barbour won Paisley by a sweeping majority. The Paisley Times of the 16th ult says:—"The majority by which Mr Barbour has been returned is thrice what was generally accepted as a fair, approximate estimate of how the respective candidates would stand in the various Wards—particularly the West and the East Divisions. At a quarter to ten o'clock, Mr. Jas. A. Young, secretary of the Liberal Club, announced to a large crowd the result as follows—

Mr Barbour	2,215
Ex-Provost Clark	1,463
Majority for Mr Barbour.	752
Spoiled papers	15

Both candidates are Liberals.

Seven men passed the whole of Thursday night on an old wreck opposite the Recoleta. They went into the river to bathe, and the water rose so suddenly that they had to make for the wreck for safety. They were rescued next morning.

The pecuniary-unpleasantness in the Belgrano Municipality has been smoothed away. The Pampa says that there was no ground for the charges made.

Mr. Chiquito de Eibar and his fellow players are at home to-day at Plaza Euskara in the afternoon. Two games will be played.

We remind our readers that the patients in the British Hospital are already looking forward to the extra treat generally provided for them at Christmas time, by the generosity of the best fellow countrymen and women. Donations in kind or otherwise, destined for the Hospital or to any of the Committee.

The South market in Rosario fetched six thousand Nats more this year at the annual auction of "derechos" than last year. Nevertheless the Mayor and Corporation are chronically hard-up for public funds, and are likely to remain so. They talk of borrowing a round million, but it is generally believed that the lender of the amount is not yet born.

The smiling Locust has paid his earlist visit to Banda Oriental, in San José department. Very sorry to hear it.

Now, you young scamp, said Binks, senior, as he led his youngest out into the woodshed and prepared to give him a dressing down. "I'll teach you what is what." "No, pa," replied the incorrigible, "you'll teach me which is switch." And then the old man's hand fell powerless to his side.

ON 'CHANGE

December 19th, 1885

Gold	141.50
Cedulas E	77
Cedulas F	76
Cedulas G	80

Everything in the market gives way in price under the pressure of tight money, save gold. It is clear now that to bring gold down much lower by restricting the currency the whole market must give way. High gold means high prices and abundant money market, whilst low gold means a break in everything. The Cedula market may be said to have collapsed, and the break in this once favourite stock is due not so much to any want of confidence in the security as to the necessities of the market, which compels holders to realize. Cedulas of almost every Series were offered to-day, and the tighter the money gets the more this stock comes on the market.

The gold market opened at 141.30 cash, rose to 141.60, and closed at 141.50; sales 287,000
For December 26th 30,000 at 141.50 For December 31st 165,000, opening at 141.30, and closing at 141.50. For January 31st 255,000, opening at 141.40, dropping to 141.20, and closing at 141.40. For February 28th 20,000 at 141.50.

Cedulas ruled falling all day. Series E that hitherto kept up, was sold at 77, Series F at 76, and Series G, large transactions, at 80, closing weak and sellers.

Exchange is reported scarce and falling. Two of our private banks have had to take pretty freely to cover their bills drawn over the counter; and the result is that the drawing houses have filled their lists and still there are takers. It being now at the close of the year, the remittances to Europe are somewhat over the average, and we have yet to learn the amounts drawn by the two State Banks.

The statement by the Nacion respecting the Bono General to the Provincial Bank and the clause against its being negotiated abroad, in the new loan contract, have been no suprise in the market, as it was generally known in high commercial circles more than four months ago. The bonds of the Provincial Bank cannot be negotiated in Europe for some time, but the Bono General can be given subject to that condition.

Much attention is paid to the great political meeting so long talked of for the amalgamation or coalition of the various Presidential Candidates opposed to Dr Juarez Celman. We learn that the meeting will come off tomorrow or Monday at Dr Gorostiaga's house in Calle Cangallo.

The intense heat of the day checked the attendance on 'Change, although the Bolsa was, perhaps, the coolest spot in the whole city; still the hall was almost empty at 2 o'clock.

Some papers received by the mail from Germany have severe articles on the estancieros of the R. Plate censuring them for not subscribing themselves for the Argentine loan instead of sending it over to Europe where no property holder ever makes 30 to 40 o/o as the estancieros of the R. Plate. There is certainly some room for the remark.

Mr Denner, of Esperanza, arrived from Montevideo to day and leaves on Monday for Santa Fe. He says that about ¼ of the lino crop may be counted on, nothing more.

The following is a summary of operations effected this morning at the ring during official hours:—

The Provincial Bank Board has applied to the National Government for payment of 2,400,000 m/n amount advanced by the Bank to the Government to pay for the expropriation of the Riachuelo Works.

The sale of the Casado Railway concession is again spoken of in the market as about to be concluded. The business is one of the very greatest importance, and if the Central Argentine miss this chance everything that Mr Krell writes may be accepted as fact against the present board.

Gold at afternoon closed weak at 141.30, about 150,000 sold, and nothing done in Cedulas.

The mole was crowded this evening; the Chilian Minister, also Mr Hawkshaw, Mr Christophersen, Llavallol and others. The Olimpo took down to-night crowds of passengers, all the Jefes and their families summoned by President Santos to Montevideo.

Baron Fock took leave of his friends; he sails on Monday in Matteo Bruzzo for Constantinople.

Mr. Casey sold the following lots of wool to-day:—
2000 @ Curumalan, 80, 93, 110
1000 Suipacha, 82, 86
600 Chivilcoy, 83

Complaints are very general regarding the bad state of the Western Railway line near Moreno, and many passengers state that an accident may happen one any day. The Western Railway has always enjoyed the reputation of being the best laid down and best kept line in the Republic, and we must confess this is the first complaint we have heard about it being in so dangerous a condition. We call the attention of the Directors to the fact.

The steamer Limay, of the Rio Negro fleet, made its first trip up to Roca yesterday crowded with passengers and cargo. Amongst her passengers were Colonel Godoy, Comandante Fernandez Oro, and many other officers. We believe this steamer will from date run regularly between Patagones and Roca. This is a want that has been much felt here.

The following important decision has just been given by the Arbitration Court, composed of Drs. Legarza, Fernandez and Solar. It appears a certain Pascual Leguizamon, who died some four years ago, sold before his death some camp to a daughter for the sum of 7000 nats. The heirs have now come forward and petitioned the court to annul the sale as illegal according to the Civil Code. Don Jose Leguizamon, who appeared for the heirs, clearly proved his case and the sale has been declared null and void. The real value of the property was proved to be 30,000 nats.

The steamer Montevideo, which went aground some 6 or 7 days ago, is considered as completely lost. She had on board 1500 bags of maize. The steamer Rio Gualeguay is also aground, but there are still hopes of saving her. The steamer Phœnix, 13 tons register, has been bought by Mr Lucas Gonzales for the sum of 9000 nats.

A new Exchange Book published by Mr. R. Wiepking, has appeared, on sale at Mr Jorge Mackern's library, Calle San Martin 7. It contains more than 900 tables, gives rates on England from 30d to 49d, on France from 3.10 frs to 5.17, and Reichsmarks in proportion; the lowest rates being equal to about 60 o/o premium. Rates on Montevideo are given from 1 o/o discount to 2 o/o premium in ½ o/o and from 2 o/o to 60 o/o premium in ½ per cent. The banks just having begun to draw on European markets in paper, and many exchange transactions being lately reported to have taken place in the market, we believe this book to appear just in the time and to meet an immediate want.

Our friends in Liverpool are at last beginning to pay more attention to the River Plate trade, and in a letter received by the mail from one of the leading Liverpool shipping firms, our friend says:—"We are becoming alive to the importance of your country and we trust that before many years are about the port of B. Ayres will rival that of London, Liverpool or New York". Now, if we wrote this, we should be prepared for all sorts of abuse on the old charge of editorial enthusiasm, but here we have more than ever we printed written, and not by an Argentine but by one of the first shipping merchants of Liverpool, whose views so entirely correspond with our own that we suspect some of the firm know more of this country than the average Liverpool shipping merchant.

Messrs Hermann Ritgelt & Co., in their fortnightly circular, under date Dec. 16th, publish some interesting particulars respecting the crops. They say:—In our last issue we hoped to obtain details and advices on the prospects of the harvest. These details and advices, however, we have not received, as the rain and severity of the weather have delayed the crop in Sta. Fe, Entre Rios, and in our Province. Nevertheless, several samples have been received, and a few lots of wheat are on sale at the Once for January and February. With regard to the quality and quantity of the harvest of 1885/86, we cannot even offer an opinion, as the advices to hand are not of a nature to lead to any accurate idea. We are told that much of this year's yield will be bad; but we have seen very good wheat in Sta. Fe and Rosario. We have received no samples either from the South or Salado. Unfortunately the advices published concerning the linseed crop are only too true; it appears that no district has escaped the ravages of the "izoca". The devastation of the blight and the frosts has been completed by the "izoca". In our last issue we stated that the yield of linseed throughout the Republic will not exceed, on an average, 80 arrobas per "cuadra". We have now the painful duty of reducing this figure, since most of the linseed fields that appeared to flourish in the first days of the month are now ruined, and the yield will not even defray the expenses involved in sowing &c. The Province of B. Ayres has suffered more than its sister-provinces of the Litoral. Santa Fe and Entre Rios will have a poor crop, 40 to 45 o/o less than the estimated yield. There can be little doubt the linseed crop will not suffice to meet the contracts made in the beginning of the year; so that buyers and sellers will be obliged to make their non-arrangements, for to exact the fulfilment of the contracts for delivery of linseed would involve the ruin of our camp interests. The fall in the price of linseed in the European markets will materially facilitate these arrangements.—Wheat.—During the fortnight the entries have been of small importance, but the demand is strong and prices have risen under the influence 20 to 40 cents per fanega. It is observed that middling classes of wheat fetched relatively high prices, this is due to the small stock of wheat of superior quality. Holders do not appear inclined to sell their good wheat, for they set down prices not at all in proportion with the demand of the market. We quote the following sales, and we call attention to the fact that most of the wheat sold was from Sta. Fe or Rosario:—

Rosario	4,000 bags at $113
"	3,000	115
"	1,000	120, all good qualities.
"	4,000	120 at the Once.

Sta. Fe lots fetched 110, 106 and 93
Diamante wheat, 1,200 bags at 111, 112.
One small lot of Costa wheat fetched the magnificent price of 127. Few sales of Salado wheat. The market closed with a sharp demand. We quote:—

	Good to superior.	Middling.
Costa	115-127	90-105
Salado	100-115	85- 95
Sud	105-112	85- 95
Rosario	115-125	90-105
Sta. Fe	95-110	80- 90

Candeal—A strong demand is the main feature of the market, prices shewing a rising tendency. We quote:—

Superior	115-125
Good	100-105
Inferior	70- 90

Exports of wheat from B. Ayres from January to November:—

Exports of flour from B. Ayres from January to November:—

Exports of maize from B. Ayres from January to November:—

1884	1885

Exports of linseed from B. Ayres from January to November:—

1884	1885

We find in the London papers received by French mail the following:—

"The Financier says:—Accounts received in highly-influential quarters in London furnish fresh testimony to the improvement in trade which is taking place in the United States. What is important from our own point of view is that American orders are beginning to come over more freely to this country. It is a fact that orders for the purchase of all kinds of metals were received in England yesterday from the other side of the Atlantic.

"According to the Daily News, the deplorable street scrimmages after business hours in London in connection with the dealings in American stocks on receipt of New York telegrams, have goaded a number of brokers and dealers to petition the Stock Exchange Committee there. The document is powerfully subscribed, and its gist is a request that the American market shall be allowed to migrate to a covered space after business hours, instead of being justified by cabs and pickpockets in the street, as at present. It also asks the Committee to prohibit dealing after 5 p.m. And both these requests are reasonable."

Dr Gonnet, Provincial Minister of Public Works, is at present preparing a project which will be laid before the Legislature next week. Dr Gonnet proposes to grant a guarantee of 6 o/o to any company with a capital of ten million dollars started in the Province with the object of preserving and shipping frozen meat. Estancieros will be glad to hear this, but at the same time the project is just three years too late, as the frozen meat trade can now take care of itself. It will, no doubt, give an impetus to the trade, and this at the present means a great deal.

Later particulars than have already been published regarding the purchase of the Ribes Line of Steamers by the Platense have just come to hand. It appears the French Company did everything in their power to arrange the matter, but Mr Ribes would not come to anything like a reasonable settlement. The shareholders of the French line then called a meeting and unanimously agreed to liquidate the company, which was paramount to handing the entire traffic over to the Messageries Fluviales. However, owing to some arrangements made at home, this idea has been abandoned and the company, we believe, will become an English one instead of French. If this is fact, Mr Ribes will have a much stronger competition than he ever had before, and time will tell whether he will be able to charge the public any price that may suit his own convenience.

Messrs Andrew & Labró made a contract when the flax crop promised so well to deliver 4,000,000 @, which would give them about as big a commission as ever fell to the lot of a broker, viz 70,000 m/n. But owing to its failure the contract has fallen through, as it is simply an impossibility to deliver such a quantity. The news from France about flax is anything but encouraging, the price having fallen a franc per arroba.
